When Is The Best Time To Lime?

The question implies that one period during the year might be a better time to apply it than others. Is this true? Why might one time be better than another?

We are familiar with the fact that a considerable period of time is required for a lime application to have its maximum effect on soil pH. This was clearly demonstrated in research conducted during the 1950's by a former faculty member of the Agronomy Department at Virginia Tech. In most instances two years were required for soil pH to reach its maximum following a lime application. The implication of this research is that if lime is needed it should be applied as soon as crop production practices will permit. This makes it possible for crops to be grown following the application to have as much benefit as possible. Therefore, the answer to the question is as soon as crop production practices will permit after you find out lime is needed.

This raises another question. What is the pH in your fields now? Will lime be needed for next year's crop production? The answer to these questions will come from soil tests. Therefore, the first job facing you is to get your soils tested. This means getting the samples pulled just as soon as you can after crops are harvested. If you do it then, you will have time to get the needed lime applied this fall. The lime will be able to start increasing soil pH this fall, and pH will be more favorable for crops grown next year than if lime applications are not made until next spring.

Try to avoid getting yourself caught in a bind like this. You put off soil sampling with the idea that you will pull them next February or March. Next February and March turn out to be like they have been for the last two years, cold as blue blazes and the soil frozen hard as a rock. You cannot pull soil samples and still need an answer to the question, "Do I need to apply lime?" Should you apply some before crop planting just in case it is needed or should you wait until fall? Applying lime when it isn't needed can be almost as bad as not applying it when it is needed.

Unviously, the best thing to do is to pull those soil samples as soon as you can and apply the lime that is shown to be needed. Call us at 352-8244 or stop by for additional information on getting your soils tested.

Engineers Offer 103 Scholarships, Grants

The National Society of Professional Engineers is making available 103 grants and scholarships to aid high school seniors interested in pursuing engineering careers, Mr. Richard L. Rossignol, P.E., local chairman of the nationwide scholarship program announced today.

Mr. Rossignol, who heads the scholarship effort of NSPE's Lynchburg chapter, said students will be selected for the awards on the basis of academic standing participation in extracurricular activities, evidence of leadership, character and self-reliance, comments of teachers and administrators, and financial need. NSPE scholarships are provided with the cooperation of 34 leading companies and educational institutions; recipients receive awards of $1,000 to $4,000 with some full scholarships.

To be eligible for the awards, a student must be a high school senior ranking in the top quarter of his or her graduating class, plan to enroll in a college or university with an engineering curriculum approved by the Engineers Council for Professional Development (the profession's accreditation body), and be a U.S. citizen or plan to become a naturalized citizen.

Students must submit scholarship application to the local chapter before December 15; national winners will be selected in March.

For applications and more information on the NSPE scholarship program, contact scholarship chairman, Richard Rossignol, at 239-0921, ext. 356 or a high school guidance counselor.

Golf Tournament To Be Played Oct. 20 - 21

There seems to be very little interest in the annual Hooterville Special Golf Tournament as indicated by the low number of registrations to date.

This fall classic, a 36 hole event to end the tournament season, has been very popular in the past and always proves to be very enjoyable to those participating.

If you plan to play this year, you can help the Golf Activities Committee by registering as soon as possible.

County Farm Bureau Seeking Donations To Aid Hurricane Victims

The Appomattox County Farm Bureau is seeking contributions from members and other concerned individuals to aid victims of Hurricane David in the Dominican Republic.

Hurricane David, the most destructive this century, lashed the island on Aug. 29, with winds up to 150 miles per hour. The entire agricultural sector was left in ruins meaning the islanders will have to depend on food from outside sources for at least a year.

Through permission of the Virginia Farm Bureau Board of Directors, a Farmer-to-Farmer program has been initiated to aid the distressed farmers of the Dominican Republic. The Virginia Farm Bureau has set a goal of $10,000 to be collected by Nov. 15 from members which includes a minimum of $100 from each of the 86 county Farm Bureaus.

The Farm Bureau in cooperation with CROP will insure that all money will go directly to individual farmers in the Dominican Republic.

Individuals interested in contributing should send their contributions to their county Farm Bureau. Checks should be made payable to CROP: Dominican Republic Farmer's Program.

Preserve those valuable papers have them laminated at the TIMES-VIRGINIAN, phone 352-8215.
